60 charities helped by LandAid fund

The LandAid Covid-19 Emergency Fund has given out more than £500,000 to youth homelessness charities across the country in its first month and is hoping to raise and distribute £1m in emergency funding in the coming months.

Grants of up to £10,000 have been given to 60 charities, including Youth Voice, a national programme which is made up of people aged between 16 and 25 who have experienced homelessness.

The £10,000 grant will be used to support their members through the pandemic and to access small grants for basic necessities such as food, fuel and mobile phone credit.

The companies helping to support the property industry charity include Abstract Securities, Allsop, BCLP, BNP Paribas Real Estate, CLS Holdings, Grainger, Grosvenor Estate, Helical, Knight Frank, Landsec, Logicon, M&G, Picton Capital, Prologis, Savills, SEGRO, Siren Design, Simmons & Simmons, Squire Patton Boggs, and Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield.

GCW goes an extra 868 miles in lockdown

GCW property consultants has raised £11,500 for charity through a company lockdown challenge.

All 29 members of staff took part in a week of continuous exercise, requiring one person to complete one hour of exercise every hour over five days.

The daily round-the-clock challenge

GCW staff drew inspiration from 1990s icon Mr Motivator as they completed their lockdown challenge involved team members running, cycling, walking or doing another form of exercise, as long as it complied with government lockdown rules.

A total of 868 miles was travelled in aid of Elifair, a charity which provides support and care for disabled children and young adults.
